The first two time periods conform to the alternative arguments in the Relator's memo regarding exclusion of time periods. In the first of these, Relator contends that the only time period for which Defendants should be compensated is the time after Defendant notified Relator of the CMS guidance. In the second, Relator contends alternatively that if the Court believes Relator should nevertheless have been aware of the CMS guidance, Defendants should only be compensated for the time spent prior to the denial of the motion to dismiss given that the Defendants believe the guidance was dispositive yet failed to include it in that motion. This chart lists the number of hours from vague time entries during those time periods so they can be subtracted if the Court agrees with Relator's position on either. Further calculations regarding the hours for which Defendants should be credited under these scenarios minus these vagueness reductions and other reductions are contained at the end of the Relator's memo. The "entire case" listing lists the number of hours that should be subtracted from the firm's total if the Court does not agree with either of these alternatives and if the defendants are awarded fees for the entirety of the litigation. That calculation is also included at the end of the Relator's memo.
